I. OPEN DISASTERS/EMERGENCIES:

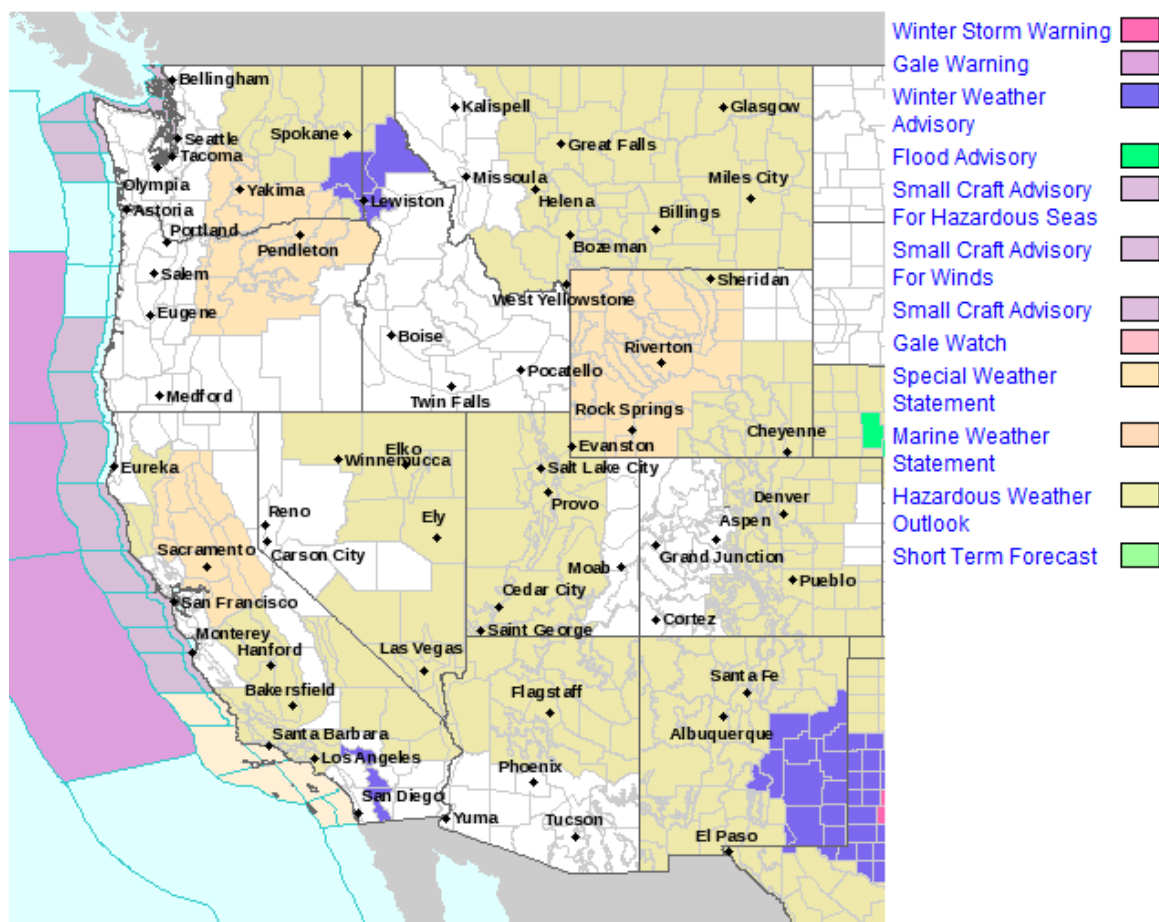

II. WEATHER:

Northern California –A low pressure system will move along the Northern coast Sunday, bringing a slight chance of showers down through the Sacramento area. A weak system will brush to the east of the area on Monday, bringing some snow showers to the Sierra. Generally warmer and drier conditions expected much of next week with light north winds. The bulk of the precipitation in the San Francisco Bay Area is forecast to occur from mid-morning to midafternoon and then throughout the afternoon and early evening hours from Monterey Bay southward.

Southern California – A colder low pressure system from the northwest will move through southwest California tonight and Monday with a few showers lingering into Tuesday. It will bring cooling showers and a slight chance of thunderstorms late tonight and Monday morning with snow levels lowering to around 4000 feet. Conditions will remain unsettled through the end of the week as yet another stronger low pressure system develops across the western United States heading into the weekend.

III. FIRES:

Overall Fire Risk:

Northern California

Most areas have received precipitation this week, and all areas are going into the weekend with cool and humid conditions. There is only a slight chance of additional light precipitation in coastal areas and in the mountains on Sunday. With warm temperatures and low humidity NOT expected in the near future fuels will only gradually move back into the Dry category. For longer-term fire potential the moisture this week has not done much to change the overall drought situation. The region is now entirely in Severe to Extreme drought conditions. The latest map and details regarding this can be found at:

<http://droughtmonitor.unl.edu/Home/StateDroughtMonitor.aspx?CA>

Southern California

There will be little or no fire activity across the region through the end of next week.

Preparedness Levels:

National Preparedness Level 1

Preparedness Level 1 Multi-Agency Coordination System MACS Mode 2

Southern California

IV. SIGNIFICANT ACTIVITY:

State

Drought 2014 (No change)

* The SOC is activated at Level 2 in support of the Drought State of Emergency from 0800-1700 hours daily. The Inland REOC is activated at Level 2 from 0800-1700 Monday through Friday or as needed. The Coastal and Southern REOCs are activated at Level 1.

No state assistance is required.

Situation:

The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in drought conditions throughout the State. Some local jurisdictions are implementing mandatory conservation orders. The Governor has established a Drought Task Force to oversee and coordinate the response to this event.

The Task Force continues to be in very close contact with local jurisdictions and state agencies to monitor the health of state's water, agriculture, and economy.
